

Product Comparison Guide

Choose the prospecting product that fits your workflow

These four Fusable products are designed to support prospecting for equipment buyers, helping your team find, prioritize, and act on the highest-value opportunities faster. While all four give users access to Fusable prospecting data, they differ in how teams access that data, where they work, and how insights fit into daily workflows.

As you review the comparison below, keep three questions in mind:

- Where does your team do its work today?
- How do you want to use prospecting data – and where does it need to flow?
- Are you looking for the fastest path to value or a more integrated long-term solution?

EDA by Fusable

Best for teams that want a familiar standalone prospecting workflow. It helps users search, build lists, and work directly with trusted prospecting data in a dedicated environment.

Fusable Platform

Best for teams that want a more modern, web-based prospecting experience. It is designed to improve common workflows and provide a strong foundation for future enhancements and expanded data access.

Fusable API

Best for organizations that want to embed Fusable prospecting data into their own systems and processes. It supports teams that prioritize flexibility, automation, and integration with internal applications or broader technology stacks.

Fusable Salesforce App

Best for sales teams that want to use Fusable prospecting data without leaving Salesforce. It brings data and action closer together by supporting CRM enrichment and in-workflow selling motions inside the system sales teams already use.

The table below is designed to help you compare each option based on workflow fit, data access, setup needs, and integration capabilities, so you can identify the product that will deliver the most value for your team.
